She will talk about her journey as a photographer, and the development of "Being Inbetween" a personal project. She will share her process and techniques involved in creating striking and compelling portraits, and also if time do a live demonstration.

Ian Day FRPS

Ian has over 27 years experience in press photography with the majority spent in editorial management roles and he is currently the Deputy Editor of The Yorkshire Post and Yorkshire Evening Post.

Ian was named a Fellow of the Royal Photographic Society in 2015, RPS director-general, Dr Michael Pritchard said: "Ian's achievement is a remarkable one and both he and Yorkshire Post Newspapers should be proud."

More information about the speakers can be found on the RPS Website Yorkshire

The Members Day will take the form of last years, in that several tables/print stands displayed the work of photographic societies and clubs from around the region, for attendees to peruse and discuss accessing and opportunities on offer.

Last years successful day included groups such as the – Yorkshire Monochrome Group, the Yorkshire Photographic Union, several local photographic clubs, and of course the RPS Special Interest Group

We hope you would consider contributing and being part of this day, unfortunately as there is limited availability, it will be on a first come basis.

There are no charges for organisations/clubs attending, and each organisation can have two complimentary tickets for people in attendance of their table, including refreshments of the day.
